Drought? What drought?

Rains close schools and cause local troubles

■ Citing concerns over safety of students travelling through flooded streets, school superintendent opts to cancel classes today

By Steve Marschke

A nearly non-stop drizzle since New Year's Day escalated to a torrent on Monday and Tuesday, as downtown Sacramento reported nearly 1.5 inches of rain in a single one-hour period at one point. But, although flooded streets and backed-up storm drains continued to be a problem, West Sacramento appears at least momentarily safe from a major flood.

In rain-related news this week:

■ Dr. David Miller, superintendent of the Washington Unified School District, announced that all local classes would be canceled today (Wednesday, Jan. 11).

"We just made the decision two minutes ago," said Miller on Tuesday afternoon. "The first issue is the safety of our children. The second issue is that it is difficult for many of our teachers who don't live in West Sacramento to make it to school."

A number of surface streets throughout the Sacramento region are flooded and impassable. Roads are also closed in parts of western Yolo County.

Miller said the decision on when to re-open classes will be taken "day by day." Parents and students are urged to tune into television and radio broadcasts for the latest news on school closures, and the News-Ledger and its message machine (371-8030) will also contain updates on local schools.

Two classes at Golden State Middle School experienced flooding problems this week, but the problem was corrected.

■ Part of the roof of the Montgomery Ward distribution center on Industrial Blvd. caved in Monday, but no injuries were sustained. Rain was believed to have caused the collapse.

■ A "twister" formed and spent itself on the Marshall road property of Elton and Connie Johnson in Southport. The twister "sounded like a train," said Connie Johnson, but largely spared the couple's house. Elsewhere on their five-acre property, the twister moved a pickup truck and travel trailer both over a foot sideways, threw a camper shell over 30 yards, damaged empty horse stalls, destroyed a 30-foot-square hay barn, bent metal gates and fencing and relocated both floors of a small, two-story horse-show registration building -- utterly destroying the first floor of the structure.

"I feel I'm lucky it didn't destroy the house," said Elton Johnson.

Neighbors were unaffected.

■ Employees of the school district, city services and reclamation districts have been planning and coordinating their efforts in case of a major flood emergency. But although drainage problems have sometimes caused local flooding, there have been no reported injuries or major property damage.

"The problem at this point appears to be local flooding due to storm drains backing up, rather than from the levees breaking," said Assistant City Manager Carol Richardson.

The Sacramento River is not at a threatening level at this time.

■ Reclamation district officials are trying to obtain backup generators for drainage pumps, which operate on electricity and may be threatened by the storms.

■ As heavy rains fell periodically without a break, some flooding occurred in local mobile home parks, such as Glide Mobile Home Park, and on streets such as the Westacre Rd./I-50 underpass.

No homes were reported flooded, although many West Sacramento curbs and lawns have found themselves underwater, waiting for a break in the rainfall to allow drainage to catch up.

■ At least one fistfight resulted from the storm.

At the temporarily-flooded intersection of West Capitol Ave. and Harbor Blvd., two men reportedly came to blows after one of them stopped his vehicle in front of a large puddle.

"One guy didn't want to go through a puddle, and another guy wanted him to. There was a report of a fight going on," said Lt. Ron Moore of the West Sacramento Police Department.

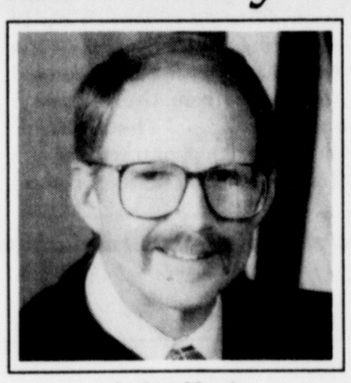
■ Tow trucks and auto service professionals had a field day as wet cars developed electrical problems and often refused to start.

Residents in danger of flood damage may obtain sandbags from West Sacramento's public works headquarters at 1951 South River Road.

A break in the storms was expected through last night and early today, but another round of rain is anticipated for later Wednesday.

Mock and Shockley to lead 1995 Yolo courts

The Judges of the Yolo County Superior/Municipal Court recently elected Judge Stephan L. Mock Presiding Judge, and Doris L. Shockley Assistant Presiding Judge for 1995. Judge Mock was elected to the Superior Court of Yolo County in November 1990. He is a California native who graduated from the University of California, Davis in 1968 with a Bachelor of Arts degree. In 1971, he obtained his Juris Doctor degree at Boalt Hall. In November, 1973, he went to work for the Yolo County District Attorney's office and during his seventeen years handled over 200 trials, including misdemeanors and felony.



Judge Mock

Judge Shockley

Judge Doris Shockley joined the Municipal Court in 1988 and was elevated to the Superior Court in 1994. She attended Indiana University, Eden Theological Seminary and Whittier Law School. After passing the California Bar in 1975, she served as a Deputy District Attorney for five years, handling a variety of cases. From 1981 until 1988 she practiced privately, emphasizing criminal law.

In 1992, the Municipal and Superior Courts unified court locations, closing its Davis and West Sacramento facilities. This action was taken in response to the passage of the Trial Court Realignment and Efficiency Act. During the first year of consolidation/unification, the courts reduced expenditures for court operations by 18% through judicial cross assignment and administrative integration. The courts now operate with one presiding judge, one assistant presiding judge, and one court executive officer.

Man stabbed to death, suspect sought

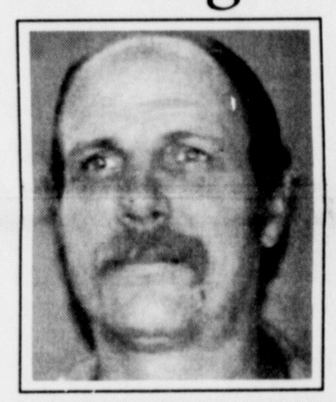
By Steve Marschke

Police are looking for a 44-year old male suspect in connection with an early-morning stabbing death Monday.

The 37-year old male victim's identity is being withheld until police can locate and notify his next of kin. They believe the victim was visiting a woman at a trailer park at 731 F St. when suspect Lee Wayne Davis, a 44-year old former resident of the trailer park, approached.

"There was no argument, altercation or disturbance prior to the suspect approaching him at the trailer door and stabbing him three times in the back, puncturing his lungs," said Lt. Ron Moore of the West Sacramento Police Department.

Davis, who has no known permanent address, is described as 6' 4" tall, 230 pounds, with blond hair and hazel eyes. He is said to frequently travel on bicycle. He has previously lived in both West Sacramento and Woodland.



Police are looking for Lee Wayne Davis, a suspect in a stabbing death at a local trailer park.

Moore said the stabbing may have resulted from a dispute between the two men over property, possibly stolen from the suspect.

Police are considering Davis to be armed and dangerous. Anyone with knowledge of the suspect's exact location is asked to call 911.

Anyone with less urgent information on the case is asked to call 372-2461.

City and paper plant head towards long-term development agreement covering issues

At its Dec. 14 workshop, the West Sacramento City Council requested fine-tuning of several items in the proposed development agreement between the city and the MacMillan Bloedel/ Haindl Papier partnership which plans to build a large paper recycling plant in the Southport Industrial Park.

Some of those items:

■ The plant will include exhaust stacks which will emit steam, creating visible steam plumes during "certain times of the year." The developer will be obligated to reduce these visible plumes with "best available technology during construction" of the plant. The developer also agrees to upgrade these efforts with new technology if it is economically feasible, as "determined by mutual agreement between the City Manager and Developer."

■ The plant will produce more than 800 tons of solid waste daily. Developers will agree to "research various means for using the sludge produced by the Project" and implement these means when re-use is "economically feasible," as decided mutually with the city manager.

Newspaper recycling plant pledges to be a good 'corporate citizen,' supporting local charities, if and when the plant is built in West Sacramento.

Other parts of the agreement:

■ The plant will require about six million gallons of water per day, making it probably the city's main water user. The developer "shall enter into an agreement with City regarding water supply and storage prior to operation of the Project." If the plant draws some of its water from its own wells, and not from city supplies, then it must "include measures to insure that Project operations do not hinder the continued production of neighboring water wells."

■ The city has had trouble with existing sewage treatment needs, and will require some kind of arrangement with the paper plant to dispose of the plant's 7.7 million gallons per day of liquid wastes. In the development agreement, the developer is required to "enter into an agreement with City regarding wastewater treatment prior to operation of the Project."

This agreement "shall address the appropriate waste discharge standards, and proportional funding of pumping, transmission, and treatment facilities."

■ The plant also promises to be a good "corporate citizen."

The agreement cites MacMillan Bloedel's "recognition from around the globe for the joint company-union program to assist individuals suffering from the effects of drug and alcohol use, as well as family and social problems," and promises to contribute to local organizations to a degree "consistent to that done in other cities."

The agreement will come before the council at tonight's meeting, which begins at 7 p.m. in the World Trade Center (second floor), 2101 Stone Blvd.

The development agreement, if passed, will supplant conditional use permits for the plant which were issued and renewed beginning in 1992.

Johannessen:

Senator says he'll donate raise

State Senator Maurice Johannessen, a Republican representing West Sacramento and other areas of the Fourth District, has announced that he will donate his 1994 legislative pay raise to charity.

The pay raise amounts to around $20,000 for a state senator, and was formulated by an appointed commission.

Johannessen is a Redding businessman with real estate interests.

A spokesman for Assemblyman Tom Hannigan, a Democrat from Fairfield, earlier told the News-Ledger that the assemblyman would keep his portion of the legislative pay raise.

Hannigan represents West Sacramento and the rest of California's Eighth Assembly District.

Stallard sworn

Woodland resident and attorney Tom Stallard was sworn into his new seat on the Yolo County Board of Supervisors Jan. 2 at a ceremony at the Woodland Opera House.

Stallard takes over representation of the county's 3rd District, which includes most of Woodland along with the Bryte neighborhood of West Sacramento along the city's northwest.

Stallard defeated Bryte resident George DeMars, a 16-year supervisor, for the seat during the June, 1994 ballot.

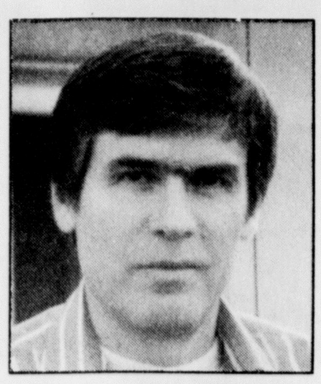
Teenage girls' view of men: they lie and they're scum

My Back Pages



By Daryl Fisher

The other evening, my nineteen-year-old daughter, Carrie, and her eighteen-year-old best friend, Amy, were sitting on the couch with me watching a re-run of my favorite television comedy, Seinfeld, when a cute little commercial came on. It takes place in a dimly lit kitchen, where this guy and his wife--it may be his girlfriend--appear to be having a late-night snack. She is wearing a nightgown and is seated at a table, looking at an empty glass. He seems to be about half-awake and is busy searching around inside the refrigerator for something to drink. "Did you think I wouldn't find out?" she suddenly asks him.

He looks back at her with panic and says, "Is this about that ring I got you?" She glances down at a ring on her finger, obviously puzzled by his answer. "You know," he continues, "a cubic zirconia looks just like a real diamond." Now she is really concerned, but she still doesn't say a word. He sits down next to her at the kitchen table and adds to his problem by saying, "Well, then, is this about that time I spent in prison?"

She looks at him with disbelief, holds up her empty glass, and finally says, "I just thought you drank the last of the milk."

Caught up in his lies, he tries to force a half-smile and then a caption appears on the television screen which reads simply, "Got milk?"

As I chuckled at the commercial, I couldn't help but notice that my daughter and her best friend didn't think it was all that funny.

"You know," said Amy matter-of-factly to my daughter, "men can be such pigs."

"Tell me about it," said Carrie, nodding her head in agreement.

"They lie like dogs," continued Amy. "It's almost like they don't even know how to tell the truth."

"They think it's just a game or something," said Carrie, shaking her head in disgust.

"It's really kind of sick," added Amy.

"And when they aren't busy thinking up new lies to tell us," said Carrie, obviously warming to the subject, "they're out there somewhere trying to build up their poor little male egos by flirting with other girls behind our back."

"Isn't that the truth," said Amy. "One girl just never seems to be enough for any of them."

"I wonder why that is?" asked Carrie.

"I think it's probably hormonal or something," said Amy, wrinkling up her face.

"Well," said Carrie with conviction, "all I know is that I don't want to have anything to do anymore with a guy I can't trust."

"But that's the problem," said Amy. "You can't trust any of them--not even the ugly ones."

Then, as I began to squirm around on the couch and desperately try to come up with a good excuse to leave the room, my daughter suddenly looked directly at me and said, "You're a man, Dad--so tell us--why are most guys such immature liars and cheats?"

"Yeah, Daryl," said Amy with a wicked little smile she inherited from her mother, "I know you're really old and everything and most of this has already passed you by, but I'd still like to hear what you have to say. I mean, no kidding, why are guys such scum?"

Trying to buy a little thinking time, I sat up straighter and slowly cleared my throat. "Well," I finally managed to say, "to begin with, don't you think the word scum might be--you know--a little harsh?"

"Oh no it isn't," said Amy, quickly correcting me. "It describes most of the guys I've met perfectly."

"You tell him, Amy!" said Carrie, proud to have a friend willing to say it like it is.

Knowing that I wasn't going to be much of a match for Amy's quick wit and Carrie's tenacious logic--they are always creaming me in similar debates--I decided to turn the conversation in a slightly different direction--towards pity. "Girls," I said, "someone once said that for most men, loving and possessing, conquering and consuming, that is their way of knowing."

"Knowing what?" asked Carrie.

"Oh," I said, "lots of things--like who they are--what's special about them--if they measure up to what they think men are supposed to be--stuff like that."

"But why do they have to lie and cheat to figure those kinds of things out?" asked Carrie.

"I don't really know," I admitted, wanting to also say something profound to my daughter like please don't spend too many precious years looking for some kind of superhuman, perfect happiness in relationships, because you'll only miss the wonderful sweep of days that a man and a woman can share.

"Well," volunteered Amy with confidence, "I know exactly why they all lie and cheat."

"Why?" Carrie and I asked in unison.

"Because they're scum!"

Local government: agreement with paper plant developers highlights council agenda

Light, texture show off in exhibit

The photography exhibit at the Arthur F. Turner Branch Library, 1212 Merkley Avenue, West Sacramento, is like an ode to the beauty and diversity of the forms and textures created by nature. The intensity of vision of the artist gives the viewer an insight to the brilliant and striking contrast formed by light on an object. The light on melting snow creates a beautiful pattern of light and dark shadows in the photo "Bumpas Hill Melt Down."

The sweeping grandeur of "Monument Valley" and "Snag Tree" battling the elements of wind, sun, and rain illustrate the gradual changes that take place in nature and the struggle for existence in harsh climates. The gnarled branches of "Leptospermum" has been carved into a sculpture of flowing, rhythmical patterns. "Tenacious Bristlecone" also illustrates the theme of survival as the oldest living tree hangs on to life in the windswept mountain top.

The upturned earth, and the newly created waterfall at St. Helens attests to the violence of the St. Helen volcano. Sweatt captures the moment in sharp light for strong contrasts so that you can almost hear the roar of the tumbling water. Snow covered trees beside a cold stream swirling around snow covered rocks is pictured in sharp detail in "Deciduous Grove." Another waterfall cascading down from great heights is "Multnomah Falls" in Oregon. Sweatt's photo gives the sensation of the height while the composition adds a human touch with the bridge of the old road appearing half way up the fall.

There are echoes of times past in "Canyon De Chelly Whitehouse" when the abode built into the cliff walls provided protection from the elements and enemies. "The Source" shows abstract patterns of the striated and eroded sandstone rocks and becomes a symbol of the source of nature. "Oneonta Gorge" is further evidence of the beauty created by the erosion of wind and water as the river continues the work of deepening the gorge.

Sweatt uses the infinite gradations of light and dark to express the coming of spring when the "Wildflowers in an Orchard" begin to be seen. In another season nature covers the ugliness of a devastating forest fire with a mantle of white snow pictured in "Fire and Ice."

In both "Deserted School" where the pattern of the pillars is the only thing marching down the school hallway, and "Gladding Mc Bean" the quiet, unpopulated studio at the pottery work-place give a feeling of loneliness.

The exhibit is sponsored by the East Yolo Friends of the Library and will be on view during January.

The stage is set for the biggest NFL game of the year!

More than 80 million fans are expected to watch Sunday's NFC title game. The San Francisco 49ers will meet the two-time defending Super Bowl Champion Dallas Cowboys at 1 p.m. at Candlestick Park.

The 49ers covered the largest point spread (17 1/2) in NFL playoff history, beating the Chicago Bears 44-15.

Steve Young and many of the starting offensive players were pulled from the game in the third quarter, leading 30-3, but the good news was that there were no major injuries to their starting players.

The Cowboys blasted the Green Bay Packers by the score of 35-9, but lost Emmitt Smith in the first quarter with that same hamstring problem he had three weeks ago. Smith will probably play Sunday, but for how long is the question. This game should be the Super Bowl! The winner of this game should win the Super Bowl if they escape without major injuries to star players.

In the AFC, the Steelers handled the Browns pretty easily, with a 29-9 victory in Pittsburgh. The Chargers didn't have such an easy time with Dan Marino and the Miami Dolphins. The Chargers needed a last-second, missed 48-yard field goal by Miami to win 22-21 and send them to Pittsburgh for the AFC championship game on Sunday at 9:30 a.m.

The Steelers are favored by 7 1/2 points, but I think the Chargers can make it closer than a touchdown. Take the points! Pittsburgh 19, San Diego 17.

The 49ers are favored by 7 1/2 points over the Cowboys, which is pretty crazy, but the odds makers in Las Vegas feel the Niners are the team to beat and are favored to win Super Bowl XXIX in Miami. If Emmitt Smith plays the whole game, look for a very close contest or even a Dallas victory! If Emmitt sits out the game, the Cowboys will have to change their game plan a little and if that happens, the 49ers will win big! 49ers 31 - Dallas 17.

The Sacramento Kings (17-13) continue to win at home and face a long, four-game road trip beginning Tuesday against the Minnesota Timberwolves. On Wednesday, the Kings travel to Milwaukee, then face the Bulls in Chicago on Friday and finish with the Celtics on Sunday in Boston. The Kings released Trevor Wilson, but will have to pay him his full contract of $230,000. The Kings will have to release another player next week to make room for the injured free agent Frank Brickowski, who hadn't played this season because of a shoulder separation in training camp. If the Kings can win two games on this road trip with Brickowski playing, they can make that run for the playoffs!

See ya next week!!

West Sacramento Little League signups tonight at local library, through 21st

The West Sacramento Little League will hold sign-ups on January 11 and 18 at the Arthur F. Turner Branch Library meeting room between 6:30 and 8:30 p.m.; and on January 21 at Memorial Park between 9 a.m. and 12 noon. The fee is $40 for the first child and $30 each additional child.

There will be an additional charge of $10 to register a child on the day of tryouts. Tryout dates and times will be posted at the time of registration. A child who is new to this league must present a birth certificate at registration to be eligible for play. All children must present proof of medical coverage at the time of registration.

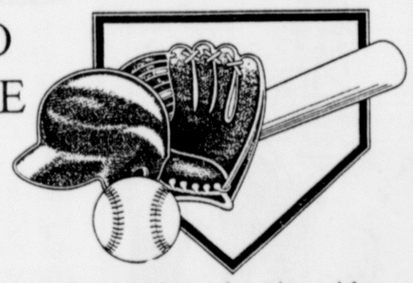
1995 WEST SACRAMENTO GIRLS SOFTBALL LEAGUE

(Washington Girls Softball League)



The West Sacramento Department of Parks and Community Services in conjunction with the Washington Girls Softball League is offering a Girls Softball League for all girls ages 5 to 19 years. All girls, regardless of ability and/or experience are encouraged to sign-up. Several changes have been made to ensure the enjoyment of all participants. The league divisions are as follows:

Instructional League: Ages 5, 6 & 7 years. The purpose is to teach the basic fundamentals. No pitching will be allowed. A batting tee will be used. All players will bat and play every inning. No standings will be kept and no all-star team will be picked. Note: Some 7 year olds may have the option to move up to the Rookie League.

Rookie League: Ages 8 & 9 years.

Minor League: Ages 10 to 12 years.

Major League: Ages 13 to 16 years

Senior League: Ages 17 to 19 years

These leagues will be competitive leagues where standings will be established and all participating players will be eligible for the all-star teams.

The registration fee is $35.00 per player which includes a team T-shirt, team photo and a participation trophy. In order for this program to continue we will need help from YOU the parents. Managers, coaches and team moms are needed. Training will be provided. Note: The Senior League fees may increase due to the nature of the program.

Please complete the registration form on the back and return it (with the fee) to the Department of Parks and Community Services, located at 1951 South River Rd.

Sign-ups will begin on Monday January 16, 1995 at the Dept. of Parks and Community Services. You can sign-up between the hours of 7:30 am to 5:30 pm Monday thru Friday. Sign-ups will continue until Friday, February 3, 1995. On Wednesday, January 25th and February 1st evening registration will be available from 6:00 pm to 7:30 pm.

News-Ledger Editorial

Paper plant and city skyline may not be good match

Do you know what the planned newspaper recycling plant will look like? What effect its stacks and steam plumes will have on the city's skyline (from the plant's location roughly across from Unocal's twin domes on the deep water channel, and fairly close to a subdivision in Southport)?

You probably don't know, and this is a shame, because the visual impact of the plant does matter. It will affect property values, aesthetics and city image.

Yet this issue was never adequately addressed. "How will the plant look?" is a question asked several times by this newspaper during the city's approval process, and the only result was some artist's renderings which were rather heavy on the use of green, and which showed a stylistic view of how the facility would look from hundreds of feet in the air. The pictures were moderately helpful for those West Sacramentans who spend a lot of time in a helicopter, but didn't do much good for the rest of us.

A group of city representatives, accompanied by a News-Ledger reporter, visited a similar plant in Georgia in 1992. Among the positive things they learned was that a paper recycling plant doesn't stink -- the plant doesn't use any of the sulfur compounds used by "virgin" paper plants and which create the famous "rotten egg" odor. Even standing among the smokestacks, an odor from the steam emissions was very hard to detect.

But among the differences between the Georgia plant's location and the planned Southport Industrial Park site is that the Georgia plant was out in the "boonies," and not, as in West Sacramento's case, very close to the city's geographical center.

So the smokestacks and their steam plumes were not an issue in Georgia.

Under pressure from labor unions and developers -- two of West Sacramento's most powerful special interests, even though many of the members of each do not live here -- city leaders have largely chosen to let this issue slide and leave the public under-informed.

The big battle, everyone knows, will be over how to treat the plant's millions of gallons of sewage without going broke, and without polluting the Sacramento River too much. But other issues, such as how the plant's smokestacks will look from the freeways, from Park Blvd., or from Southport, should never have been ignored.

And the new development agreement, which is almost sure to be approved, has few "teeth" with which to enforce such issues as "corporate citizenship" or steam plumes.

Letters to the Editor

Holidays continue

In reference to your cover page story in The News-Ledger of January 4, 1995, I'd like to correct the common misconception that the "holidays were over" as of Tuesday, January 3. In spite of the fact that there's an overabundance of "after Christmas" sales and a race to get the tree and all the decorations down and put away, the holidays are not over until January 7.

The four weeks prior to December 25 are known as Advent -- a period of waiting and preparation. December 25 is the first of the twelve days of Christmas, which continue through January 6, the Feast of the Epiphany, which commemorates the arrival of the wise men. Yes, I know the wise men didn't actually arrive on January 6, and, for that matter, Christ wasn't born on December 25. But these are the dates that for centuries have been set aside to celebrate these tremendous events in human history and, considering all of the weeks of preparation, it is fitting that we fully appreciate and celebrate these occasions for the full twelve days.

So, hats off to the knowing staff at the City of West Sacramento offices and other businesses that have kept their lights on and their decorations in full view for the duration of Christmas. And for those relatively few homeowners who have not been in a rush to get all the trimming boxed up and put away -- thank you!

No on Cheaper

The City of West Sacramento wisely adopted a moratorium on development in Southport until a second bridge over the barge canal is opened. Now that decision seems to be in question as regards the Cheaper store proposed for the intersection of Jefferson and Linden, and I am at a loss to understand why the council is even considering making an exception to a sound policy.

The key factor in this determination must be the effect the Cheaper Market will have on traffic on the existing bridge. The only way it can possibly reduce it is by making a trip "into town" unnecessary. It's hard to believe anyone will find Cheaper an acceptable substitute for Raley's or Safeway. Although an 8,000 square-foot market may sound large at first, it's actually smaller than the 15th Street Market, which has 9,000 square feet. Well over 3 of these Cheapers would fit into the West Sacramento Safeway's 27,000 square feet. More than 8 would fit into Raley's, which has 65,000 square feet. Do al my shopping at Cheaper instead of going over the bridge? I don't think so.

The Cheaper people aren't novices. They know they can't compete with Raley's and Safeway on variety. They have other plans for building their business, and you can bet they don't expect to survive by serving as a convenience store for Southport residents who run out of bread or milk. Cheaper will have to advertise heavily to an area considerably larger than Southport, seeking customers who are willing to drive farther in search of a bargain. Given the population patterns in the great West Sacramento area, most of these people will have to dive over the bridge to go to Cheaper, and the traffic will increase.

Southport's infrastructure can't handle this additional traffic. Although the bridge may be the major chokepoint, it certainly isn't the only one. Shoppers leaving the Cheaper store to go back toward West Sacramento will have to turn left onto Jefferson, affecting both northbound and southbound traffic. This is a sure-fire prescription for accidents. And it isn't a feasible location for a traffic signal, as there's one only a block away at Jefferson and Linden.

Finally, there's the issue of competition with existing businesses. There are already two small markets on Jefferson Boulevard, plus 7-11. By pushing low prices, Cheaper will draw away some of their customers, possibly to the point of causing one or more to go out of business. Does the city council really want to treat West Sacramento's longstanding businesses this way?

Think about it: the more traffic increases over the bridge, the happier the Cheaper people will be. But the residents of Southport and the owners of existing markets will be negatively impacted. A Cheaper in Southport is not in the best interest of West Sacramento at this time. It may never be.

Potshot at schools

In the January 5 issue of the Sacramento Bee there was an extensive article about West Sacramento schools. For the first time in many years, the Bee provided an article about our schools that was not totally negative in content.

Unfortunately, the writer, for political reasons, interjected negativism into what could have otherwise been an honest appraisal of our school district, which is now moving forward for the first time in the past ten years. The Bee writer pointed out that our school district was "dead last" in Average Performance Value of high schools in fourteen Northern California counties. This rating was assigned based upon test scores covering the period from 1984 through 1994.

Any caring and concerned person who is involved in public education in West Sacramento had to be aware of the shortcomings within our school district. Because of political considerations this failure to provide quality education to our children was condoned for too many years.

As a former member of the Board of Education, it was refreshing to read of the many accomplishments of the new district administration. This new administration was put in place by the school board prior to the last election which substantially altered the composition of this body. In the list of achievements presented in this article it should be noted that the first five of seven listed achievements was initiated and approved by the previous school board; that is, prior to the June 1994 election.

One unfortunate aspect of this Bee article was that the writer chose to quote Daryl Fisher on the present state of the district. Mr. Fisher is a disgruntled former school board member who resigned rather than admit changes were needed in the district administration. Fortunately for our children, he was not successful in his efforts to keep our former "do nothing" superintendent and his cronies in power. Mr. Fisher was a member of a three-member minority who fought to maintain the "status quo" and who refused to admit that problems existed within our schools.

West Sacramento is very fortunate to have Dr. David Miller in our community. He is committed to making our schools better for all our children, and unlike our past superintendent, admits that we can to much better. Our new superintendent demonstrates his commitment to our schools and community by living in our city and placing his only child in our district school system.

It is time to remove petty politics from our school district and support our new leadership team in its efforts to provide a quality education for all our children.

The Sacramento River registered 4 feet 2 inches, U. S. gauge at the S. P. bridge, yesterday.

Word has been received from Bob Clifton at a point in France about eight miles from Metz. Bob has been through the mill and has been in the hardest of the fighting, although he was one among the last draft. He is well and expresses himself as extremely glad that the fracas is over.

On Thursday, January 2d, a baby boy was born to Mrs. Basil Holmes (Josie Marty). Mother and baby are getting along nicely.

Mr. and Mrs. P. Faull returned to Grass Valley last Saturday after several weeks' stay in Washington. Mr. Faull underwent an operation at the White Hospital in Sacramento from which he was greatly benefited.

Clarence Harms came home last Sunday from Panama where he was honorably discharged from the U. S. Navy. On October 21st, Clarence was taken severely ill with ptomaine poisoning and at that time he was transferred from the U. S. S. Schley to Balboa for land duty. He is now feeling in first-class condition again.

The first arrest made by Constable Henry B. Buckingham was made last Monday, the day on which he became Constable of Washington Township. James H. Russell and Ah Fong, a Chinaman, wandered across the bridge and were spending their time frivolously along the levee. Buckingham arrested them, charging them with vagrancy. On examination, they were sent to the County Jail for 180 days each, although the crime of which they were guilty was of an unmentionable character.

In a vacant house on the Hoagland place north of town, James Dalton, a noted character of Sacramento was found last Monday with a badly injured knee. Peter Ghelfi reported the case to Judge Barry and they conveyed the old man to the Emergency Hospital in Sacramento where he was given treatment.

Word has been received from Dave Barry from some point in Luxemburg where he is doing duty under the Army of Occupation. The letter was written on December 19th and several souvenirs were inclosed for his parents and friends. Dave says he is glad that the severe fighting is over and that the Germans are of the frame of mind to take their medicine soberly and with as much grace as possible.

Mrs. Agnes Kinch has been under the weather for several days of the past week but is again able to attend to the business of the Washington Grocery Store.

Lieutenant E. L. Muhm is confined at the Letterman Hospital in San Francisco with a case of influenza. Word to his relatives in Washington indicate that he is overcoming the plague satisfactorily.

Ray Lee and wife of Riverbank are confined to their home with influenza but are feeling greatly improved during the past few days.

The Riverbank school opened last Monday for the regular term. Every precaution has been taken by the teachers and children to avoid contagion from influenza.

Mrs. Wm. Wilson is at home after several weeks' visit with relatives in San Francisco.

Mrs. M. Conzetti is able to be around her home after a week's illness with influenza.

For the Christmas holidays Mrs. E. Peek and three sons visited with Mrs. Peek's parents in Lincoln. A family reunion was held at the home.

Captain Rideout, who was confined to his home last week with influenza, has entirely recovered and expects to return to his work with the Sacramento Transportation Company any day.

Mrs. J. W. Leathers was the guest of Mrs. Joseph Shaw for several days of the past week. She has returned to her home in San Francisco.

Dan McCarthy was taken to Woodland to the hospital last Monday by Constable Buckingham. It was feared that he was suffering with influenza.

Mrs. C. Carlander is seriously ill with influenza at her home in Riverbank. Every possible precaution is being taken to bring about her early recovery.

Mrs. Fred Moser is confined to her home with a severe cold but her relatives think that it is not a case of influenza.

Word has been received from Percy Eugene, who is located at Camp Mills, N. Y., that he is again dangerously ill. A few months ago, he was at the point of death through an attack of influenza but recovered soon after his parents reached his bedside.

At a general meeting of the Red Cross Chapter last Tuesday evening, it was reported by the membership committee that $1200 had been collected in the last drive but that many subscriptions and pledges previously made were not yet completed. The Washington Chapter is affiliated with the Sacramento headquarters instead of with the Yolo County headquarters. The funds will be turned over to the Sacramento officials, the local chapter retaining one-quarter of all amounts collected. All garments on hand are reported to have been completed and forwarded to headquarters.

BEER NOT SCARCE WITH BOYS SERVING IN FRANCE

Writing from Sermaize-les-Baines, in France, on December 4th, Frank Hoffman, one of the boys of Washington now doing duty under the Stars and Stripes, wrote to his father, Chris Hoffman, of Washington, as follows:

Sermaize-les-Baines, France.
December 4, 1918.

Dear Father:

I will drop you a few lines to let you know I am well and hope this reaches you the same; also to tell you that I think we will be on our way home pretty soon. That is, the 40th Division is getting ready to leave France, so from what I understand I will be leaving sunny France toot sweet (very soon), so you will soon be able to see me again.

The government is asking for some voluteer men to stay over here to fill up some kind of a labor unit, but I don't care to stay myself, as from what I have seen I sure got all I care of France and then some; but lots of the boys are going to stay.

I have some pictures of this last burg we are camped in, and believe me she sure is some shot up place. It looks like some cyclone of hell hit it right in the middle, and then left and took everything with it, so you have an idea what it looks like, so whenever you see a picture of what this war done to a town why you can have an idea just what happened.

Well, I haven't got much more news except that there is plenty of beer in this town and I sure am getting my share, so I can't complain any, and we are getting good eats, so all is O. K.

P. S.—I weigh 185 lbs. now. Ain't so bad after all, eh?

Well, I will close with best wishes for a Merry Xmas and a Happy New Year to you and many of them. I remain,

Your loving son,
Corporal Frank C. Hoffman,
Co B. 115 Supply Train,
American E. F.
A. P. O. 788,
France.

P. S.—Give my best wishes to all my friends who may happen to ask about me.

APPOINTMENTS MADE

Woodland, Jan. 8.—The following appointments have been made by the Yolo County Board of Supervisors:

T. J. Evans, courthouse janitor; George Weaver, assistant janitor; J. C. Stitt, hospital warden; T. J. Alexander, county veterinarian, and Mrs. R. W. Woods, matron at the county jail. E. B. Cook was reappointed motor cop.

RESPECTED MEMBER OF PIONEER FAMILY OF WASHINGTON DEAD

Last Wednesday, the earthly remains of Mary E. Glascock were cremated at East Lawn.

In early youth, Mrs. Glascock was a resident of Washington where her parents were pioneers of the county, living on Second street near Rocky Point. Later she was a resident of Willows, but during the past four years lived in a palatial home on Thirty-third street, near the Folsom Boulevard, in Sacramento.

She was a sister of Mrs. W. H. Larkin and Mrs. Emma Ballou.

The Cantrell family of which Mrs. Glascock was a daughter was highly respected in the early days of Washington's history and many of the residents now in this locality remember the parents and the girl as among the interested property owners of the town.

Mrs. Glascock died after a protracted illness which extended over a period of nearly a year.

STITT IS CHAIRMAN OF YOLO BOARD

Woodland, January 7.—M. H. Stitt, Supervisor from Guinda, was elected Chairman of the board at the first meeting for 1919. C. E. Leinberger of Washington was mentioned for the position of Chairman, but stated that he could not accept owing to business obligations.

The Supervisors named E. B. Cook as motorcycle officer; J. C. Stitt, County Infirmary Warden, and Dr. J. T. Alexander as County Veterinarian.

M. H. Stitt's appointment as Chairman of the board releases B. F. Edson from that position.

REED ORCHARDS MAY BE EXPANDED

Woodland, Jan. 3.—Permission to sell all of its capital stock amounting to $50,000, divided into 500 shares, par value $100, has been granted the Hayward Reed Orchard Company of Yolo and Yuba Counties. Hayward Reed's concern is one of the biggest pear growing combines in the country. The company plans to clear the rest of its holdings and plant an additional acreage to fruit trees and beans.

The congregation of a Portland, Ore., church has accused its minister of embezzling $25,000.

That is not so bad.

Any parent would rather he would take the money than the chastity of a daughter of the house.

Ohio has voted dry, but that is no example for California.

California is a grape-growing State. Ohio is noted for its beer.

Quite a difference.

CATHOLIC PARISH WILL NOT BE READY FOR JANUARY 12TH

Some time ago it was announced in The Independent that on Sunday, January 12th, Rev. Father John H. Ellis would take over the care of the three churches located in this section of Yolo County, namely, Washington, Riverbank and West Sacramento.

Word has been received from Father Ellis, who is now located at Jackson, Amador County, that the change cannot be made on the date above mentioned, because several priests of the Sacramento Diocese who had been taken over as Army Chaplains have not yet returned and several other newly ordained priests that were expected have not arrived.

Father Ellis writes to The Independent that the people must not feel disappointed for a short time, on account of this unavoidable delay. As soon as a possible release can be given him from his Jackson parish, he will become rector of the churches in this district.

In the meantime, the local churches will be served by the Woodland priests, Father Horgan or Father Murphy as heretofore,

YOLO-LAKE HIGHWAY WILL HAVE HEARING

Next Thursday night, January 16, a public hearing will be given the Yolo-Lake highway proposal.

Fred Shafer, Secretary of the Yolo Board of Trade, who was in Sacramento yesterday arranging for the meeting, said that a large delegation would be in attendance from his section.

Several members of the Senate, including Senators Claude F. Purkitt of Willows; W. E. Duncan, Oroville; Benjamin Rush, Suisun; W. S. Scott, San Francisco; Senator J. M. Inman, Sacramento, and A. H. Breed of Piedmont, will attend.

There will also be representative Assemblymen present. Chief Highway Engineer A. B. Fletcher and others will speak.

PUBLIC SCHOOL TO REMAIN CLOSED

The trustees of the Washington public school have decided to continue to keep the school closed for some time or indefinitely till the epidemic of influenza decreases.

In this action they have the approval of all the parents of the town.

CHILD DIES OF INFLUENZA

James W. Howard, the two-year-old son of Wm. and Mrs. Howard, died at their home on the levee last Tuesday, January 7th.

The child had been ill with influenza for several days, finally developing into pneumonia and causing its death.

Police log

Jan. 5, 12:10 a.m.
A woman advised a police officer that a man was urinating on a tree along Rockrose Rd. The 36-year old male suspect was arrested after an officer observed him urinating and smiling at the woman at the same time.

Jan. 5, 12:24 a.m.
A man took a 12-pack of beer from a West Capitol convenience store and fled on foot.

Jan. 5, 7:40 a.m.
A 30-year old West Sacramento man was seen in a Westacre Rd. apartment removing items that were not his. He told officers that the renter of the apartment owed him money, and he was taking property in exchange. Police found the window and front door had been pried open. The man was arrested or burglary.

Jan. 5, 8:22 a.m.
A Maryland Ct. woman reported some of her mail had been stolen.

Jan. 5, 12:53 p.m.
Police received a call that four or five youths were involved in an altercation at a Touchstone Pl. apartment complex. A man was pistol-whipped on the head, and suspects fired at least one gunshot while driving away. The next day, a 19-year old resident of the complex was arrested at a Summerfield Dr. location, anc charged with assault and with allowing another suspect to fire a weapon from his vehicle while he was leaving the scene.

Jan. 6, 7:15 a.m.
A subject tried to "cut off" another man's vehicle in traffic along Jefferson Blvd., and then reportedly fired a gunshot, shooting out the window of the victim's pickup truck while the victim was inside it.

Jan. 6, 3:35 p.m.
A set of license plates was stolen from a vehicle at a Pecan St. apartment complex.

Jan. 6, 5:52 p.m.
West Sacramento police assisted their counterparts from Sacramento, along with a security officer from a Sacramento downtown department store, in chasing a forgery suspect who had fled into West Sacramento on foot across the Tower Bridge.

Jan. 7
An officer handling a call noticed a Ford Mustang drive by with the passenger window broken. He followed the vehicle, and a license check showed it was stolen. When the car stopped, the driver fled. The officer apprehended a passenger, who had been sitting on a pile of broken glass on the passenger's seat.

Jan. 7, 12:49 a.m.
An anonymous caller was upset that two homeless people were sleeping in a local post office, and that the subjects were always there when the caller went to collect mail late at night. The caller vowed to file a formal complaint with the police chief.

Jan. 7, 5 p.m.
An officer saw a pickup truck travelling at about 55 m.p.h. in a 25 m.p.h. on Riverbank Rd. When the officer caught the vehicle and pulled it over, the driver attempted to flee, but was caught. The driver confessed that the pickup was stolen and was arrested.

Jan. 8, 3:30 p.m.
Officers saw a 44-year old Sacramento man loading pallets from a supermarket onto a rental truck. The manager told police he had not given permission for the pallets to be taken. The suspect was arrested for possession of stolen property.

Homeless camps are closed by police fighting trash, crime

By Steve Marschke

In the days before Christmas, West Sacramento police broke up several homeless camps near the Sacramento River. But the action was not, according to the police chief, an attempt to evict the homeless from the city.

Instead, it was a response to "health and crime problems" associated with the camp.

"We're not doing a river sweep in the traditional sense we have in the past," said Chief Larry Gore, who is now experiencing his first winter season as head of the city's police department. "There are a large number of camps that quickly sprang up. Once or twice a year, we try to keep these things managed. These people bring in tons of litter and debris. There are health and crime problems associated."

Gore said most of the camps were on private property. One was located on 2nd St. just south of the railroad tracks and west of the levee in the city's Broderick (northeastern) neighborhood.

"There are about three or four camps, and I asked that they be removed," said Gore. "There is broken glass, human feces and needles on the ground. It becomes a 'shooting gallery' (for intravenous drug users), and kids were playing nearby."

Gore added that prostitutes were taking "clients" to some of the more sheltered camps and performing their duties behind vegetation or debris walls. Many of the prostitutes were simply trying to earn money for their drug habits, he said.

"When you look at a prostitute, you're really looking at a narcotics problem, not a prostitution problem," he said.

When a homeless camp becomes a health or crime problem, said the police chief, the department's officers first try to offer the residents some basic counselling.

"We go down there and tell them they've got to pick up after themselves, and give the locations of shelters, and let them know that at some time in the future, we're going to come through."

Tougher laws for DUIs, minors using guns

New laws taking effect with the new year put a strong emphasis on increased penalties for drivers caught driving under the influence or with a suspended driver license.

January 1, 1995 (unless indicated otherwise) will see the following laws take effect that, among other things, will:

1) Require the driver license be suspended or delay the driver license of any person convicted of a drug offense (AB 79X, effective 11/30/94, sunsets 11/30/95);

2) Increase penalties for driving with a suspended license to up to a year in jail and a $2,000 fine (AB 2416);

3) Require the forfeiture of any vehicle being used by a person caught driving with a suspended or revoked driver license (AB 3148); and

4) Require mandatory imprisonment for persons convicted of a DUI while driving with a suspended or revoked license (SB 1758).

Other legislation (SB 36X, AB 2470) authorizes a court-ordered suspension or delay of the driving privilege of anyone under age 18 convicted of an offense involving the use of a gun, for possessing live ammunition or having a concealable weapon. It also requires the courts to order the sale of any vehicle owned by a member of a street gang who is found with an illegal firearm in the vehicle.

And one new law (SB 2004) clarifies the use of child safety seats by stating that any child under four years old or weighing less than 40 pounds must be in a child restraint system while in a private passenger vehicle. It also creates penalties ranging from $22 to $100 for each violation.

Orjames is deployed

Navy airman Dustin C. Coor, son of James and Susan Orjames of West Sacramento, recently departed for a six-month overseas deployment to the Western Pacific Ocean with the aircraft carrier USS Constellation -- the lead ship of the USS Constellation Battle Group.

The 1992 graduate of River City High School joined the Navy in July 1992.

'Evening with Mark Twain' starts Opera House series

The following is the January-February, 1995 calendar for the Woodland Opera House:

AN EVENING WITH MARK TWAIN starring Jim Pulsifer will be presented on January 14 at 8:00. Adult tickets are $12; seniors and students, $8.

Running February 3 through 25 is MORNING'S AT SEVEN by Paul Osborne, a Resident Theatre Company production. This warm comedy will feature area veteran actors Harvey Farr; Devoy White; Russ Bruch; Dan Slauson; Elaine Edstrom; Benne Alder; Charlotte French; Diane Bartlett; and Joan Edwards. The program is directed by Stephan Peithman. The production can be seen Fridays and Saturdays at 8 p.m., with Sunday matinees at 2 p.m. on February 5 and 12. The February 5 matinee will be signed in American sign language for the hearing impaired. Tickets for Friday and Saturday performances on the main floor for adults are $11; seniors (62+) and students through college, $9; balcony seats, $6; and Sunday matinees, main floor, $8; balcony seats, $6.

For tickets call the Woodland Opera House at 666-9617; the Howe Avenue Box Office at 920-1121; or the Varsity Theatre Box Office at 758-0122. The Woodland Opera House is located on the corner of Main and Second Streets in Downtown Woodland.

West Sacto history society is seeking new members

By Virginia Seamans
West Sacramento Historical Society

The year is young, the West Sacramento Historical Society is young (even younger than the city), and the society is seeking young new members.

For the first meeting of 1995, please come bringing with you one to three items that have been of historical importance to you yourself; you will thus be prepared to take part in "Show and Tell," which is the theme for the meeting. Whether you are 5 or 95, you know the meaning of this phrase, and what fun it can be to take part in it.

The meeting will convene at 6:30 p.m. on Tuesday, January 17, at the Turner Branch of the Yolo County Library, 1212 Merkley. Election of officers will take place also at this meeting, and there will be an announcement regarding the grant recently given to the society, for furtherance of its goals, by the city.

Call 451-5749 or 371-6915 if you desire further information.

Home Tips

NO MORE CONFUSION — I have several electrical cords going to one outlet and I was always getting them confused. I would always pull the wrong one out.

To alleviate this problem, I wrapped different colored twist ties around the appliance cords. I color coded them so I could easily remember which cord goes to which appliance. It works great! Helen B., Huntsville, Ala.

WRAP IT UP — Buying decorative gift bags is costly so I made my own, using inexpensive, plain handled gift bags.

I had a few bottles of bright fabric paint in different colors that had very little left in them, so I squeezed them out and made squiggly lines on one side of the bag.

I was very surprised how pretty it looked, so I went out and bought a few bottles and decorated six more bags to have on hand. Georgia W., Medford, Ore.

STAINLESS STEEL — To keep a stainless steel sink looking like new after cleaning it, put a few drops of baby oil on a paper towel or sponge and spread it over the entire area. Once or twice a week should be adequate. Your sink will remain spotless for many, many years. Lynn C., San Diego, Calif.

BOOK COVERS — I found old posters to be great book covers for my children's school books. They are very sturdy and are a whole lot more interesting than brown paper bags. Rita K., Cleveland, Texas

GREAT GIFT — My husband just came up with the best gift idea yet. He called the taxi company in his mother's town and purchased a $25 gift certificate which will entitle her to 10 free rides.

This is a great idea, especially for people who can't drive anymore. Olivia P., Arlington Heights, Ill.

SHOPPING NEWS AND NOTES

Local Supermarkets Offer Terrific Values

In a special industry-wide supermarket promotion, Hoots the Owl says, "A wise consumer shops store brands" for high quality and low prices.

(NAPS)—Here's something you may find easy to swallow: There is good news for a change about food prices.

In many cases, studies show, grocery products are getting less expensive. One reason, the experts say, is the rise of store brand products. Store brands are usually lower in price than their name brand equivalents, at the same if not better quality. The competition tends to drive name brand prices down, too. What's more, store brands are increasingly popular among consumers.

In fact, sales of private label products climbed 4.4 percent in 1993. These days, nearly 20 percent of all items sold in supermarkets are store brands.

"Store brands," explains Patrick Sylvester, director of IGA brands, one of the largest lines of store brand products in the industry, "are very different from generic products. There is virtually no comparison, quality-wise, between store brands and generic products," he adds. "Store brand products are manufactured according to exacting specifications stipulated by the retailers."

IGA has been selling quality store brand products since 1926, with more than 3,200 items in virtually every grocery category. There are stringent quality assurance programs and testing procedures for all IGA store brand items. The company is the world's largest voluntary supermarket network with 3,600 supermarkets in nine countries.

To help more people learn about the value of store brands, January has been declared National Store Brand Awareness Month by IGA and other food companies. During that time, shoppers will get special bargains on store brands. Look for the banners featuring Hoots the Owl at your supermarket. Their theme is "A wise consumer shops store brands." Many shoppers, it seems, agree.

Local Scene

Landscape exhibit

The West Sacramento Art Guild presents "Landscapes," an exhibit by photographer Bob Sweatt, on display through the month of January. The public is invited to attend a reception for the artist on Saturday, January 7, between 4 and 6 p.m. at the Arthur F. Turner Library, 1212 Merkley Ave. in West Sacramento. For more information, please call 371-9274.

Books needed

Donations are needed for the next Friends of the Library booksale. The sale is scheduled for Saturday and Sunday, January 28 and 29, in the Arthur F. Turner Branch Library community room.

Hardback and paperback books are accepted year-round at the library during regular business hours. Donors can take the books to the circulation desk or ring the buzzer at the rear delivery door on the east side of the building for assistance with large quantities.

Proceeds from the sale and other fundraisers like the magazine sale table help fund the "extras" at the library, such as videos, children's programs, leased bestsellers, and soon, audio-books. Please call 371-5612 for library hours and upcoming events.

Tax forms

It's tax-time again! And the Arthur F. Turner Branch Library will again be a source for state and federal income tax forms and booklets starting the 2nd week of January. There will be a selection of commonly used forms in the lobby as well as forms that can be photocopied from a master set in binders on a table next to the photocopier. The cost for copies is $.10 per page. As always, the library staff cannot answer tax questions or give advice about the selection or completion of the forms. The library is located at 1212 Merkley Ave. in West Sacramento. For hours, please call 371-5612.

Programs for local seniors

Attention caregivers, family and friends of persons diagnosed with Alzheimer's. There are alternatives to coping alone. Meet and talk to others who share the same concerns and learn of resources available to assist you. John Gorman of the Alzheimer's Society of Northern California will facilitate an informational session on Tuesday, January 31, at 5:15 p.m. at the West Sacramento Senior Center, 664 Cummins Way in West Sacramento.

"Grandparents Raising Grandchildren" will be the topic of a focus group from 10:30 to 11:30 a.m. on Friday, January 20, at the senior center. The discussion of the needs assessment and resource mapping phase of the Yolo County Collaborative for Healthy Children and Families project. "We want to talk to grandparents who are raising children as well as other grandparents who have opinions and ideas about children and families in the 1990's," explains Stephanie Myers, research assistant on the project. "We want to hear about the problems and concerns, but also about what is working for young children and their families. Communities have strengths and resources and we want to hear about those, too."

The Yolo County Collaborative for Healthy Children and Families received funding from the Sierra Health Foundation and the Family Preservation Act for its first-year needs assessment. Project staff are seeking to talk to as many people in Yolo County as possible to include a variety of opinions, ideas and suggestions as they move toward completion of the first year's assessment. For more information about the project, please call Stephanie Myers at 974-8688.

You are invited to attend the very first West Sacramento Wheel of Fortune game show to be held at the senior center on Thursday, January 12, at 1 p.m. The cast will include: Gladys Neighbours -- Pat Sajak; Dorothy Edmonds -- Vanna White; Tony Ruggiero -- camera man; Stella Morey -- floor manager; Dan Parisi and Irene Keller -- stage hands. Contestants include: Annie Mae Irby, Mary Ali and Edith Erck. Join us for an afternoon of fun, laughter and excitement. Lunch will be served at 12 noon. Please call 373-5819 by 12 noon on January 11 to make reservations.

If you are interested in becoming involved in other productions, or for additional information on any of the above events, please call 373-5819.

Yolo Assessor elected to post

Yolo County Assessor Alan Flory was elected President of the Bay Area Assessors' Association and President-elect of the California Assessors' Association at their recent conference in Concord.

Flory will automatically assume the statewide association's presidency in January of 1996.

The Bay Area Association is comprised of the 15 Bay Area counties and the statewide association includes all 58 counties.

Both associations work directly with the legislature and state and private agencies to develop regulations and procedures to ensure that assessment programs in this state are efficient and result in valuations that are fair and accurate reflect the provisions of state law.

Flory was elected to a third term as Yolo County Assessor in June of 1994.

Community services center task force

West Sacramento held its first Task Force meeting on a Community Services complex.

The committee, made up of members from the community and representatives from the Youth Commission, Parks and Community Services Commission and the Commission on Aging plus Parks and Community Services Department Supervisor Julie Leber have set a date of April, 1995, to make a recommendation to the city council on the location, funding source and design of a complex to include a senior community center and city hall.

Transportation grants available from state

California Transportation Director James W. Van Loben Sels has announced that $5 million in federal funds will be available this year for transit services for the elderly and persons with disabilities.

The money, allocated through the California Department of Transportation (Caltrans) by the Federal Transit Administration, allows private, non-profit organizations and some public agencies to purchase accessible vans and buses or other transportation equipment to serve people with special needs.

Agencies serving the elderly and persons with disabilities are eligible to receive up to 80% of the purchase price for vehicles and equipment. Since the mid 1970's, 1650 vans and buses have been bought through this grant program.

Eligible organizations can apply for grant funds through any of the 12 Caltrans district offices. For the Sacramento Valley/mid-Sierra counties, contact Esther Thompson at Caltrans District 3 at 741-4026. Application deadline is April 15.

Indian Advisory committee for WUSD to hold meeting tomorrow

The Indian Education Advisory Committee (IEAC) will meet on Thursday, January 12, from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. in the multipurpose room at Bryte Elementary. In addition to the usual potluck and family craft activities, there will be a discussion addressing the needs assessment and grant proposal for the 1995-96 academic year. Students, parents, and community input are all needed to ensure a successful program.

Most deals require nothing more of declarer during the play than proper technique. "Fancy" plays such as squeezes and coups may attract more attention, but in the long run, good technique will win a great many more points than all the so-called fancy plays combined.

Consider this deal from a team contest where both North-South pairs reached four spades as shown. At one table, declarer won the opening club lead with the ace and finessed the jack of spades, losing to East's king. South won East's diamond shift, led the three of spades to dummy's ace and discarded a heart on the club king.

Declarer next led a heart to the queen, losing to West's king, and ruffed the club return. However, he could not avoid losing two heart tricks to the A-K, so he finished down one.

At the other table, declarer realized that with this heart combination, his best chance to score a trick in the suit was to lead harts from the dummy twice, playing for split honors or for East to hold the A-K.

Unfortunately, dummy's only obvious entry was the spade ace — but there was a second possibility, and declarer made sure to allow for it. Accordingly, after taking the club ace, losing the spade finesse and winning the diamond shift, South led the eight of spades to the ace of trick four, hoping the nine would fall on the trick.

When East's nine did appear, declarer was a lot closer to home. After discarding a heart on the club king, he led a heart to the queen and West's king, ruffed the club return and led the carefully preserved three of spades to dummy's seven. It was then a simple matter to lead a heart toward the J-7 to bring in the game.
